Thursday, July 30, 2015 META TIME!!!??! Not so much! There are only 6 games still to be played! It is 3rd in the AL! The Mariners are the AL West's only unbeaten team at 4-0. The O's won two on the road in the Bronx over the past weekend. I think the AL East is shaping up to be the AL West in this series. After a Mauer HR and Beltre double, Beltre struck out twice to end the game. The O's win a three game series in Seattle to even the series at 3-3. I think Chris Sale has had a pretty good start to the season. He has 4 wins on the season with a 2.10 ERA and 2.07 FIP. He leads the majors in K's and walks. He has had 4 starts in a row of 8 IP or more. Scrivens put up a 9.2 IP, 3.11 ERA, 0.68 WHIP, 3.10 FIP, and 7.49 K/9 on the season in the last three starts. However, he has had some struggles over the last few games. He put up a 5.2 IP, 5.23 ERA, 1.44 WHIP, 3.85 FIP, and 1.08 K/9 in that span. On Friday, he gave up 3 runs on 5 hits in 5.1 IP. He struck out 3, walked 3 and gave up a HR. He has only had one start where he has given up less than 4 runs this year. Despite scoring 6 runs in his last start, the Yankees have had no run support since the first game of the season. Their offense is the only part of their game that has been consistently good. Their bats were a disaster in their first game in the Bronx, then they hit 4 dingers in their next 4 games. The Yankees' offense was a disaster against the Astros, but their defense has been doing better. The Yankees scored 6 runs on 2 HR and 5 RBI in their last two games against the Orioles. The Yankees have now hit 20 HR, the only team in the AL with more than 20 HR. The Yankees have outhit

Show HN: Insulin pump app (Android) - rbanffy Since I'm not a programmer, I am building a prototype for an app that will help me manage my type 1 diabetes using the Insulin Pump. The idea is to be able to send a text message containing, for example, blood sugar level, and a few other parameters I measure most of the time, and it would return a time lapse graph of my data and compare them with a few other people with diabetes in my area. ===== pnathan I like the idea, and I think it could be a good application. I have a compatible pump, and have been using it with a computer program (Da Capo, Realize). I think, however, it will require a little bit of a re-thinking. The use case you've described is one of the _best_ use cases for the pump. Having access to the pump's data is one of the _best_ things about the pump. It would be quite useful to have an Android app for it, and it is _definitely_ not the best use of the pump's capabilities. Since you are working on a prototype, that's fine. It gives you a chance to work on the problem a bit more and to validate your approach. Keep it that way and you'll be fine. You might look into using a 3rd party server to aggregate data from the pumps, and then just store the data in local storage. That way, you could do an initial project using the existing pump data. At a minimum, I would be looking into making this application more robust. It _should_ be able to interface with a pump with a new firmware. It might be better to create functionality that uses the APIs instead of relying on third party servers. For example, my Da Capo program monitors my pump and delivers bolus doses automatically (it reads the pump data, and knows when to administer a dose based on the data). This code can be coded up and used for this. If you'd like to share it with a wider audience, I'm willing to give you permission to release it for Android, and have it hosted on my server (rather than a third party server). Feel free to contact me at pnathan@gawker.com and I can provide more details about my project (and a bit more information about my project). ----- fnayr What I can tell you from the day-to-day use of an insulin pump is that access
