Ethereum smart contract compiler Hotmail for windows two more pieces of evidence (points c and d) about the existence of such a campaign to promote the process of the tortuous, agreed-upon route (to Palestine) for the Jews. The leader of this campaign, probably Yitzhak Gruenbaum (formerly Eli Zofe), was head of the important Zionist Education Organization (Lehi Gevei), a central arm of the Haganah. This leader also published a famous "Guide to the Land of Israel" (in Arabic), which promoted the Zionist idea. He pointed out that the land of Palestine was not empty, that one of the main points of the Zionist movement was to expel the Arabs and to make the country safe for the Jews, and that the Arabs themselves did not cease to exist in the meantime. The fourth point (point e) was yet another infodump about "the true intention of Zionism, which was to enable the Jewish people to live as a people in the land of Israel". This intention was not some vague ideal - it was here, not in an abstract sense, that the phrase "the land of Israel" was intended; it was a relevant piece of political action. The fifth point (point f) was the usual self-defense, namely to explain why the Arab armies that fought the Jewish army in 1948 - even though defeated - were to the last man "simply saving the Arab people from Zionism". Once again, we are dealing with a political programme, with concrete actions. The only change was that the new title of the program was changed to "the battle in general". Once again, the idea was to convince people, to argue that the armed struggle led by the Arabs was in the service of the Arab people. This is also reflected in the program's key point: "the battle in general, the struggle for liberation", not just an assault by the Arabs on the Jews. At the same time, the program included the familiar trick of replacing the phrase "the establishment of the State of Israel" with a reference to a distant future, as was clearly demonstrated in the last paragraph of the program. To sum it up, the essence of the effort to reconcile the scattered data of the program with the new picture of the battle and the new political conclusions was to refer to it as a new edition of the old edition of the same program that had been produced in 1946, after the 1948 war. Indeed, the 1947 program bore no relation to the present
