Despicable Me 2 (or Despicable Me 2) is a 2013 American 3D computer-animated superhero comedy film based on the eponymous characters from the 2010 animated film Despicable Me. The movie was written by writers Katie Dippold and Brian Lynch, directed by Pierre Coffin, and co-produced by Illumination Entertainment. It was produced and released by Universal Pictures. Despicable Me 2 grossed $718.5 million (7.7 billion) worldwide in its box office run, becoming the highest-grossing film among all time for an animated film, surpassing Shrek the Third. It was followed by Minions (2015) and The Secret Life of Pets (2016). Development and production After completing the 2D movie, Illumination was signed on to make Despicable Me 3, which was released in July 2015.

Despicable Me 2 was in production right after Despicable Me 3 was announced. Despicable Me 2 was released two years after the first one, due to concerns about the characters evolving with the style. As it was, however, the duo of production staff found the characters "too cute to be scary any more". Shortly after the release of Despicable Me 3, Illumination

Entertainment was developing Despicable Me 4, a fourth film based on the franchise.

A sequel is not planned, since Coffin is focusing on other projects, like the pilot for DuckTales. While he had a four-picture deal with Universal for Despicable Me, it was not extended, because Coffin does not want to make more movies. In March 2011, it was announced that the second film in the series would be released in 2013. On September 27, 2012, Universal Pictures confirmed that the film would be released in 3D theaters on July 3, 2013. A teaser trailer was released on July 19, 2013, with the film released two weeks later on July 31, 2013, in 3D. The movie was produced by Neal H. Moritz and Michelle Raimo Kouy, and co-produced by Janet Healy and Steven M. Berger. The script was written by Katie Dippold and Brian Lynch, who worked with the first film. The film was directed by Pierre Coffin, who made his directorial debut, and supervised by Chris Meledandri. The co-director and a producer of the film is Brenda Chapman, a longtime collaborator of Coffin. She began working in the film industry
