I have this SQL query, which successfully joins two tables, and produces a view. What I want to do now is insert values of a column into an intermediate table. SELECT a.id,b.surname,b.forename,c.id AS contact_id,t.id AS ticket_id FROM db.a INNER JOIN db.b ON b.id=a.b_id INNER JOIN db.c ON c.id=a.c_id INNER JOIN db.t ON t.id=c.t_id WHERE a.id=1; I want to insert each of the values of the 'a.id', 'b.surname' and 'b.forename' columns into a new table. (the 'a.id' and 'b.surname' columns are already in there with their data.) How do I go about doing this? A: Your query seems incorrect. a.id will already exist, you are not assigning it to anything and thus, the query will not populate the table with the data you want. You should look at using a derived table to reference the columns you want to insert into the table. --
