Keep your browser, desktops, and downloads on track with this tool. It's an easy-to-use software package that's loaded with advanced features that let you configure automatic mouse clicks and so much more. It includes three modules: Track, Monitor, and Kill. The Track module lets you define the intervals at which to perform mouse clicks. You can set automatic intervals or choose fixed, fixed with variable, or variable time intervals. When your computer starts to slow down, the Monitor module can tell you when to perform clicks with its intuitive interface. The Kill module removes the mouse click from the current session, so you can focus on a project without any interruptions. All in all, hmClicker is a great tool to use on the go. Features: i) Set intervals, duration, and type of mouse clicks ii) Manage time interval (hour, minutes, seconds) iii) Set click location, point, and button iv) Set an application to close and click the mouse with one click v) Automatic mouse click monitoring, notification when computer is too slow vi) Kill process and click with one mouse click vii) Easy and intuitive settings viii) Registry-less installation v) Export mouse clicks into a video file vi. A one-time fee is charged for this program and we include a standard 30 day money back guarantee. .

Do you find yourself getting lost sometimes, especially while driving? GPS navigation systems come in handy for car lovers who get lost in the city, but they can't be the only solution, as they often leave you lost on the street, especially if you're driving a normal car. It's a well–known fact that almost everyone gets lost at some point. It happens to anyone and everyone, and you're never free from it if you drive somewhere in a city where there's an intersection with all kinds of streets and unknown roads. When it's time to drive and you don't know where to go, you won't find the best route to follow, which means you'll waste a lot of time and fuel. For that reason, it's always best to have some tool that can bring you back to the right direction. A GPS navigation device is a handy tool that won't let you get lost, as you'll be able to see a
