I just set-up Lightroom CC today. I've been using Photo Mechanic for years. I didn't bother to remove the plugin (not that it would have affected performance), but it did take some time to figure out how to get Photoshop to talk to it. The changes the app has made is really nice, but in a few areas painful. When I plug in an external drive with images on it, the program freezes up. I've only had this happen once thus far, but it is annoying. In the same vein, I've had the newly redesigned Viewfinder show windows in the wrong order. Again, this is only happened once, but I'm certain that I've seen this behavior before. The overall interface is great. It's very easy to find what you're looking for and it's a bit faster than Lightroom 2. I recommend you check out Lightroom 2 once you're done. Even though it's the older interface, it's very well thought-out and the amount of features at your disposal is staggering. It's much easier to share and collaborate on images than in Creative Cloud, and it doesn't burden you with a monthly fee.I loved that Photoshop now allows you to export directly to Facebook and Instagram. ABOVE: A recent auto-exposure adjustment compared with the same movie shot with Canon's 3D-LUT MONOCHROME setting and exported using the camera's "CREATE TO" option. This is how the image was exported from the iPhone via Lightroom CC. BELOW: The same image shot with the Canon 3D-LUT MONOCHROME setting. I exported the middle picture via the camera's "CREATE" option.
