I have added the JSON.NET reference in order to use the JSON4Net.Utils library, but for some reason it is looking for v3 of JSON.NET. How can I reference it? I have looked in the solution as well as the references but cannot find anything. Can someone please tell me how to use the v4 version? A: For the sake of completeness, this is how I got it to work: Go to: C:\Program Files\Microsoft SDKs\Windows\v7.0A\Bootstrapper\Packages\JSON\Assemblies\Common\Newtonsoft.Json, and find the using statements. Replace all instances of Newtonsoft.Json.Linq with Newtonsoft.Json.v4.Linq. However, I created the class using the web service API. I don't know if this was the issue, but I tested it using the web service API, and it worked. Also, you need to add references to Newtonsoft.Json.Linq and Newtonsoft.Json.v4.Linq. The invention relates to a process for manufacturing hollow bodies composed of a material provided with intercrystalline or intracrystalline voids and having a thickness of greater than 15 mm. Plastics are being increasingly used for manufacturing hollow bodies in order to reduce weight. This is especially the case for components of motor vehicles. The hollow body is preferably manufactured by extrusion. However, up to now there have been problems in manufacturing hollow bodies on the required extent, namely with any smaller wall thickness. EP 0 443 037 A2 discloses, for example, a process for manufacturing a hollow body composed of a material provided with voids. Here 79a2804d6b
